

ABSTRACT

A single chip liquid crystal imaging device includes active circuitry under the connection area for the cover glass. For example, at least a portion of on-chip dual 5 frame buffers is located under the epoxy bead which secures the cover glass to the silicon substrate.